

SHOT BY THIEF WITH PISTOL, BUT DIDN'T KNOW IT

William E. Davies Was Helping His Son Chase Burglar From House.

THE INVADER GOT AWAY

Mr. Davies Discovered His Injuries While Telephoning for Assistance.

A burglar entered the home of William E. Davies, on the Palisades back of Demarest, N. J., early to-day and went about his work in a cool and deliberate manner. The burglar was discovered by Mr. Davies's twenty-six-year-old son, Van Valkenberg, as he was sitting the dresser in that young man's room.

Young Davies took a shot at the burglar, but missed, the bullet lodging in the heavy wood casing of the door. Leaping for the stairway the burglar made for the ground floor. Young Davies followed him firing as he did. The shot had aroused the elder Mr. Davies, who ran to the stairs, revolver in hand.

Just as father and son reached the landing of the large staircase the burglar stood over in the center of the sitting-room and returned the fire. The bullet whizzed between Mr. Davies and his son, standing on those stairs. Having covered his retreat in this manner the thief leaped through an open window, his point of entrance.

Aroused the Household.

Things happened very quickly in the Davies household, a large, handsome estate. The shots and cries had awakened Mrs. Davies and her young daughter, both of whom ran screaming through the hallway on the second floor. The women showed considerable bravery and neglected the usual feminine formality of fainting.

As the burglar cleared the window and dashed across the spacious lawn of the Davies estate, Van Valkenberg Davies gained the veranda and took another shot at the fleeing thief. He only missed, as the burglar, a man in a dark coat, returned to the house. Young Davies was sure that he had hit the burglar, for he heard him gasp as he fell over the gateway and down Anderson avenue toward the village.

The elder Davies had been doing some slight thinking. Observing the direction that the thief took, Mr. Davies called the telephone and aroused John C. Westcott, the chief officer of the Palisades. Presently the only police force that Demarest and the surrounding territory can boast of, the Westcotts, arrived. Mr. Davies says he pleaded with Mr. Westcott to rush out of his home and get the burglar, but that Westcott either didn't do so or that the burglar changed his course.

By the time the police finished telephoning, Mr. Davies found he had been wounded. The instrument and wall with blood. It was then that he first discovered that he had been wounded by the burglar's bullet. The bullet had struck Mr. Davies in the left hand, clipping off a small part of the index finger.

Got Wounded and Money.

An examination of the house later on showed that the burglar had succeeded in getting away with a gold watch and chain, $500 in cash, a silver cigarette case, a little over $10 in cash. The wallet also contained the money was found on the roadway in front of the estate of John R. Demarest, about half a mile down the road from the Davies estate.

The Demarest place is just a short distance east of the home of Chief Officer Westcott and Mr. Davies, and other residents of the village. The police force of the protection society could have helped the burglar if the officer sent to aid him had been there.

It was found some time after the burglar had departed that he had poisoned the watch of the Davies household. This was found in a suspicious position on the wall. The animal was given all sorts of antidotes by Mrs. Davies, her daughter and the three servants. The dog came around all right, but was a very sick beast.

The burglar got into the house by way of a window in the sitting-room after trying about every other window on the ground floor. On all windows was the mark of a jimmy or a knife being used to pry open the latch. The burglar entered through the sitting-room window where the burglar entered was equipped with a fastening that moved very easily.

The burglar was seen by Mr. Davies was found imbedded in the panelling back of the staircase.

Wore a Black Mask.

Young Van Valkenberg Davies got a good look at the burglar. He says the man wore a black mask and was quite tall. The burglar, according to young Davies, was dressed in a long black overcoat of exceptional good material and wore a black skull hat.

WOODRUFF PLANS TO DOMINATE ASSEMBLY.

Tim wants to be boss, so the State G. O. P. Will meekly obey his commands. For he's after the job of Senator F. But has a hot fight on his hands.

Meet in that section. Mr. Davies owns much real estate in New Jersey, especially in the vicinity of Englewood, Chester and Demarest. The residents of that section have been much troubled by burglars during the last month. Over in Alpine, an exclusive residential section about two miles back of Chester and just west of Demarest there has been a series of robberies. One burglar had the effrontery to even break into the home of Mayor Hopkins of that village. The residents of Alpine have employed a detective to patrol the road leading through the section.

It had been heretofore thought that the burglars were simply country good-for-nothings that sneaked into homes, but the manner in which the Davies visitor acquitted himself has greatly stirred the residents, who now realize that they are in danger of being visited in the night by a desperate thief.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain, great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is dangerous to fill your system with drugs. They poison the body and depress the heart, while Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system. It is recognized as a medicine everywhere. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been analyzed and tested by chemists for the past fifty years, and has always been found absolutely pure and to contain great medicinal properties.
